Resources

Co-enquiry

One of the most recent initiatives in the development of the co-enquiry approach is the Beacon North East (www.beaconnortheast.org) project led by Newcastle University in partnership with Durham University and the Centre for Life in the UK. Beacon North East was one of six UK Beacons for Public Engagement, and part of a four-year initiative designed to create a culture change across the higher education sector. The Beacons were university-based partnerships that sought to support, recognise, reward and build capacity for public engagement. The project, which resulted in a series of case studies, papers, and a short toolkit for co-enquiry, is targeted at UK universities working with local communities.

The websites of Peter Reason (www.peterreason.eu) and John Heron (www.human-inquiry.org) are excellent primary sources of information on co-enquiry.

John Heron's annotated bibliography (www.human-inquiry.com/doculist.htm) provides a particularly rich list of documents and downloadable files. Peter Reason also provides an extensive list of downloadable publications (www.peterreason.eu/Papers_list).

Ethics in participatory research

Lancaster University web resource for Social science research ethics: www.lancs.ac.uk/researchethics/ which includes a comprehensive section on participatory research: www.lancs.ac.uk/researchethics/5-1-Intro.html as well as a good starting bibliography: www.lancs.ac.uk/researchethics/5-8-biblio.html

The DCRT has also produced a comprehensive guide on ethical issues, downloadable at www.dur.ac.uk/resources/beacon/CCDiscussionPapertemplateCBPRBankseta17Nov2011.pdf

Paulo Freire

There are various Paulo Freire Institutes around the world, each with their own website:

Participatory video

Insight Share (<http://insightshare.org>) is one of the core organisations promoting and supporting participatory video around the world. They published a comprehensive handbook: <http://insightshare.org/resources/pv-handbook>

The Handbook of Participatory Video by E-J Milne, Claudia Mitchell and Naydene de Lange (2012), published by Altamira Press: <https://rowman.com/ISBN/9780759121133>

In 2007, the Institute of Development Studies of University of Sussex published a compendium of resources for participatory video:
http://www.ids.ac.uk/files/Resources_on_PV.pdf

In 2011, the organization Mother Child Health and Education Trust designed a toolkit entitled Community Video for Social Change that can be downloaded from their website <http://www.communityvideo.in/>
