

Post-event resource list: Weaving land, life and justice within, through and beyond colonisation

In addition to the initial resources we shared with you, these resources have been suggested by the speakers during and following their conversation:

Decolonising My Soul: My Journey to Reclaim African Spirituality, by Wangūi wa Kamonji, The Elephant, February 2019

Wangūi wa Kamonji talking in a short section of a film from the last COP25 (conference of parties on climate change) 2019 in Madrid, touching on colonialism, gender, healing, indigenous medicines, Instagram, June 2020

Decolonising Conservation: It is about the land, stupid! by Mordecai Ogada, The Elephant, June 2019

Agency, Possibilities, and Imagination: Countering Myths about Africa's Past, by Wangūi wa Kamonji, The Elephant, October 2019

Ancestral healing with anti-oppression framework - online 'Ancestral Lineage Healing Online Course with Dr. Daniel Foor', July-October 2020

Healing Racial Trauma in Your Body, The Love Drive podcast with Camille Barton, June 2020

The Roots of White Supremacy are in Our Bodies \(Part One\), by Madelanne Rust D'Eye, Transition Network, September 2017

The Roots of White Supremacy are in Our Bodies \(Part Two\), by Madelanne Rust D'Eye, Transition Network, December 2017

Decolonizing education through transdisciplinary approaches to climate change education, by Newberry, T., & Trujillo, O. V., 2019 (In L. Tuhiwai Smith, E. Tuck, & K. W. Yang (Eds), Indigenous and decolonizing studies in education: Mapping the long view (pp. 204-214). New York and London: Routledge)